EXHIBITION RESOURCE GUIDE

Art of the Americas: Pre-Columbian Art from Mingei’s Permanent Collection is the most comprehensive presentation to date of the museum’s extensive holdings of objects used by people from the ancient cultures of Mexico, Central America and South America. The Museum has actively collected in this area for several decades.

Objects featured in this exhibition straddle cultural boundaries—from the Colima and Maya civilizations in Mexico to the Moche civilization in Peru—as well as numerous ancient traditions and cultures from Western Mexico.

Some objects were made for ritual use, such as figurines, vessels and sculptures depicting gods, shamans, animals, marine life and floral motifs. Other objects were for domestic use, including jars, bowls, spindle whorls, ocarinas (wind instruments) and roller stamps used for decorating cloth, as well as adornments such as beads and ear plugs. A collection of textile fragments is also presented.
EXHIBITION THEMES

Objects of Use
Items created for everyday use, celebrations, burials, rituals and spiritual ceremonies. As art objects, these items communicate the aesthetic values of the people who created and used them, while also serving a specific purpose.

Myth, Narrative and Symbolism
Figurative sculptures and vessels illustrate traditional stories easily understand and interpreted by those using and viewing them.

Agriculture, Trade and Celebration
Many objects are representative of specific culinary traditions, dishes and ingredients. These items are reflective of celebration, trade and agriculture, such as the cacao vessel and tamale plate.

Geography
The Pre-Columbian cultures featured in this exhibition span approximately 3,000 years. Some cultures are contemporary to one another, while others are thousands of years apart. There is also geographical overlap, with at times more than one culture residing in the same region at different points in time.

STUDENTS WILL EXPLORE

- Design and decoration as communicators of cultural traditions, stories and values
- Cultural influence and appropriation
- The impact and influences of trade
- Complex symbolism and iconography
- Regional needs and resources
